2. Reviews—Philosophy and Languages.

Paley's Evidences once a week through the year.

Lectures are given on the most important subject of the course.

Dissertations every two weeks; Orations every four weeks; and Forensics every eight weeks through the year.

The members of each class are required to declaim in public once in four weeks; the senior class to pronounce orations of their own composition.

Those students who wish to study the Modern Languages, may substitute them for all the Latin and Greek of the junior year, except Horace and Sophocles.

Private instruction will be given in the Oriental Languages.

In the Department of Ancient Languages the German Editions are used as text books.

SCIENCE.Course of Studies.

The studies of this course are so arranged, that those students, who wish to omit the study of the Latin and Greek Languages, can obtain, in three years, an accurate and extensive knowledge of all the English and Science branches of a liberal education, and also some knowledge of the modern languages, if it should be desired.

The students pursuing this science course, and those students, who are pursuing all the studies included in the other course, will attend to these branches at the same time, and enjoy equal privileges.

A knowledge of the principles of English Grammar; Geography, and Arithmetic is required as preparatory.

FIRST YEAR.—Winter Session.
